

Boosting Efficiency and Profitability with Supply Chain Management Professional Services

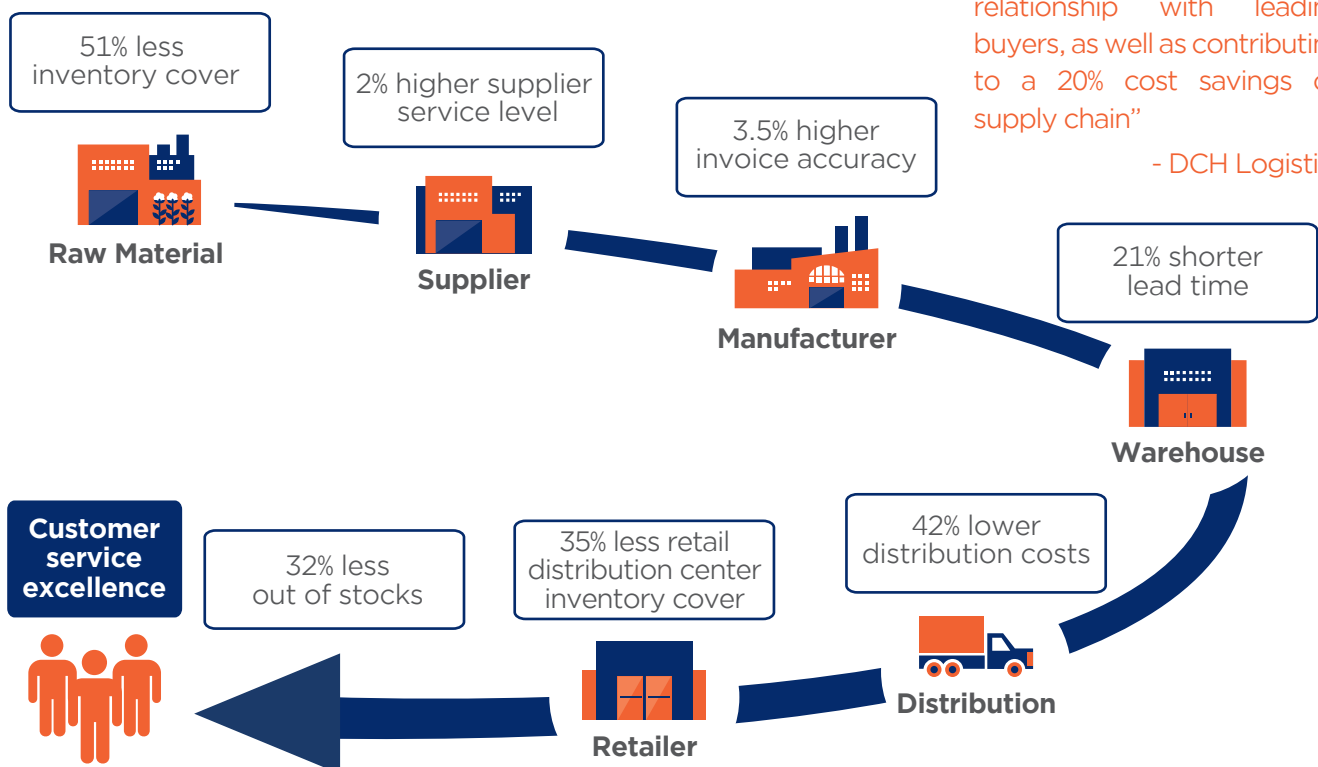

The importance of Supply Chain Management (SCM) in differentiating a company as a leader or a lagger has never been greater nowadays.

Supply chain management involves optimising your operations to maximize both speed and efficiency. It is essential to company success and customer satisfaction. The IBM study below illustrates best: the technology giant conducted a survey and observed that several positive relationships between the adoption of the GS1 global standards and technology and business results. Companies utilizing standards show several enhanced efficiencies in their business measures, such as in inventory cover, invoice accuracy, distribution costs, etc.

"The supply chain standards and standardised processes provided by GS1 HK prepare us to go beyond Hong Kong market and strengthen our position in China. By adopting global traceability standards, not only are we benefited from the reputation and image as a trust-worthy service provider, but also helps us secure our business relationship with leading buyers, as well as contributing to a 20% cost savings on supply chain"
